UNIT-4 LECTURE-3

PREPARATION FOR AN INTERVIEW

Preparation for an Interview

- Successful interviews begin with preparation
- Develop a positive attitude
- The key to success is not your experience , grades, what classes you took, extracurricular activities etc.
- Those skills are what got you the interview
- The key element is : Attitude
- Candidates attitude towards work
- Can do attitude and sincerely willing to put forth their very best efforts

Preparation for an interview

- i)Go through a Mock(practice) Interview
- ii)Gather Adequate Inside Information
- iii)Dress appropriately
- Iv)Be prepared to ask questions
- V)Memorize Resume
- Vi)Be punctual
- Vii)Relax

Preparation for an Interview

- i)Go through a Mock Interview(practice)
- It is more than a chance to work out your interview jitters
- It is an opportunity to practice your interviewing technique and answers live.
- It is also a chance to hear constructive feedback from someone who can guide you towards improving your style and presentation during interview
- Just one mock interview will bring about marked improvement in your skills
- Have the mock session video taped
- That will have two opinions- the mock interviewer's and your own
- Review your answers and go for second mock interview
- This will give you confidence in your first real interview

Preparation for an Interview

ii)Gather Adequate Inside Information:

- You can prepare for an interview is to Interview some one who is already inside
- You can use network to find out from a person you know
- An individual who went straight out of your institution into the company- the more recent the better
- If this not possible gather the information on your own
- The company's website, reports, newspapers, articles etc. will provide you information you need.
- Company's strength, mission, primary issue of focus with in, profitability, quality control, improvement, global market ,important people, interview process
- Note that the depth of information you collect before hand is far greater than what you can get in the course of interview.
- It will get you edge over others in the interview
- Take a critical look at the information you have about the job
- Just as you have structured your resume to show your qualification, skills and experience in the best possible light
- As the company's advertisement is structured in the most attractive manner
- Look at the resume from several angles, are there any hidden snags or unanswered questions
- Make a list of questions you want to ask
- It will show how carefully you have prepared for the interview and how serious you are about the job

Preparation for an Interview

- iii)Dress appropriately:
- Campus fashion and work fashions are two different worlds.
- You should be doing the talking and not your clothes'
- Select conservative good quality clothes
- They should be neat , clean, ironed
- Make sure shoes are clean, conservative, polished
- Arrange all your documents systematically in a briefcase or a folder

Preparation for an Interview

- iv)Be prepared to ask questions:
- Interviewers expect you to come in with a working knowledge of the company as well with a list of questions
- When you have done your homework you may not think of any question as you already have the company's history
- Prepare some questions ahead of time to ask during interview
- They can be based on the job you are applying for
- Egs:- whom will I report?
- What training opportunities are there?
- What promotional prospects are there?

Preparation for an Interview

V)Memorize your Resume:

- For every item of your resume, try to have a paragraph worth of information in addition to what is already said
- Try to think how each item can Illustrate your particular strengths or weaknesses
- If too nervous to remember everything , it is alright to hold a copy of your resume in your hand
- Do not forget to continue making an eye contact with your interviewer

Preparation for an Interview

- V)Be Punctual:
- The waiting room is your initial face- to- face connection point
- Always arrive ten to fifteen minute early
- Time to quick mental review before actual interview
- Have a glass of water to avoid 'cottonmouth' syndrome
- Check how long the interview is scheduled, so you will have an idea of how much time you'll have.

Preparation for an Interview

- Vi) Relax:
- By the time interview day rolls , you should be set
- Get a good night sleep, eat well, and take a relaxing walk beforehand
- Remember, it is just one job
- If you do not get it , it is not the end of the world –you may have even a better opportunity waiting around

Questions?

- Q1.What kind of preparation would you do for face-to-face interview?