E-Mails

E-mails

- Many companies are promoting the use of e-mail for most- if not all –in-house correspondence , and a great deal of communicating with outside organizations also relies on email.
- It is fast- a message can be sent to as many people as necessary instantaneously .
- It is inexpensive. It is convenient.
- People can check their e-mail without leaving their desks.
- It is very informal.
- E-mail does not require strict attention to grammatical rules.
- E-mail also has its own vocabulary of acronyms.
- Discussing confidential matters or very complex issues is often better in other ways than through e-mail.

E-mails - Etiquettes

- Some etiquettes guides and many different rules will differ according to the nature of your business and the corporate culture.
- 24 most important e-mail etiquette rules that apply to nearly all formal communication situations:

  1. Answer swiftly: people send e- mails as because they wish to receive a quick response.
- Each email should be replied to within at least 24 hours and within same working day

  2. Do not over use reply to all: use only if needed.

  3.Use template for frequently used responses: if you often tend to receive the same queries , such as direction to your office or how to subscribe your newsletter, save your replies as responses templates.

  4.use proper structure and layout: since reading from a screen is more difficult than reading from paper, the structure and layout is very important for e-mail messages. use short paragraphs, When making points number them or mark each point as separate to keep the overview.

E-mails - Etiquettes

- 5.Identify yourself and the topic: Identify yourself on the From: line using your full name rather than just your e- mail address. Eg-use-"Amit Kumar Singh"
- Recipients are more likely to respond to you if they can easily identify who you are
- At the end of your messages, include an alternative way to be contacted (i.e- mobile number, FAX , postal address) along with your name . You can provide this information in the signature field. that can be turned off for more personal emails.
- Your subject line should be meaningful.
- 6. Answer all questions, and pre-empt further questions: if you
- 7.* Be concise and to the point : reading an e-mail is difficult than reading printed communication and long e-mail can be discouraging to read
- 8:Use proper spellings, grammar, and punctuation :improper spellings, grammar etc. give a bad impression.
- 9:Do not write in CAPITALS: It seems you are shouting , the reader can get annoyed

E-mails - Etiquettes

10:Avoid using Long sentences : Try to keep your sentences to minimum of15-20 words. It's a form of quick medium.

11. Use Active instead of passive voice: eg- "we will process your order today ."sounds better than – " your order will be processed today."

12.Keep you language gender neutral::

13.Maintain Coherence: when you reply to original e-mail , you must include the original mail in your reply . click reply instead of New Mail.

14:Do not overuse high priority option: It will loose its function, it will come across as slightly aggressive.

15.Do not attach unnecessary files: send attachments when productive. Compress attachments only then send

16Read e- mail before you send it: it will avoid misunderstanding and inappropriate comments

17.Take care of abbreviations and emoticons: if you are not sure whether your recipient knows it what it means

E-mails - Etiquettes

18. Be careful with formatting: when using colours , use colour that is easy to read.
19. Do not use e- mails to discuss confidential message: its like sending a post card.
20. Avoid using URGENT and IMPORTANT: use only if it is urgent or important message
21. Use Cc field sparingly: unless you have a particular reason for wanting this person to see your response
22. Do not reply to spam :by replying to spam r by unsubscribing , you are confirming that your e- mail address is live. This will generate more spam.
